THIS YEAR'S Western Champs, held over a frost-bound Bellshill course with occasional treacherous icy patches, attracted a record entry of 1080 competitors for the five different age-groups, of whom 598 were entered for the Senior race. Scottish Junior champion, Robert Quinn, was the only athlete to retain his title, while Cambuslang held on to the Junior and Senior team titles.

The Senior 7½M race saw the experienced international, Lawrie Spence, win back the title he last held in 1982 while then competing for Shettleston. Spence is currently training 80 miles a week, laced with quality fartlek sessions, in his build up to the Scottish and World Cross Country Championships. The Greenock runner has represented Scotland in the 'International' every year since 1976 apart from 1978, and in recent years has been the Scottish cross country captain.

On the first of the three laps, Alastair Douglas, who is returning to the form which won him the Scottish Junior championship in 1981, took up the running with Spence tucked in behind. These two opened up an early gap on a group comprising the Springburn duo of Adrian Callan and Graham Crawford, Peter Fleming, Andy Beattie, Eddie Stewart, Tom Murray, Lawrie's brother Cameron and Peter Carton. On the second circuit, Douglas and Spence were still locked together well clear of the Springburn pair plus Beattie, with Stewart 40m adrift. Early on in the final lap, Spence made his effort on an uphill section and quickly gained 70m on Douglas, a lead which he maintained to the finish. In the sprint to the line for third place Callan prevailed over Crawford, with Beattie a close fifth. Stewart was a detached sixth ahead of Cameron Spence, with Murray an outstanding eighth in his first season of running. There was no holding Cambuslang in the team race as they placed their six counters in the first 24 to record their third successive victory.

In the Junior race, Quinn was a convincing winner, although he was strongly challenged early on by David McShane, who in turn was overtaken in the last mile by 1984 Scottish Youth champion, Steve Begen. In lifting the Youths' title, Alastair Russell continued his successful sequence of victories in these championships — champion Junior Boy in 1982 and Senior Boy in 1983 and '84. David Donnett was a safe second, 15 seconds ahead of Sam Wallace, while Law easily won the team race from local rivals, L&L Track Club.

Clydebank were the dominant force in the Senior Boys' race, with Danny McGinley a clear victor over Robert Mooney, and leading his club to a team win over Victoria Park, whilst Nith Valley's long journey was made worthwhile with their third place. Finally, there was drama in the Junior Boys' event as, due to an error, they ran three miles instead of the expected two. This mistake robbed Tom Graham of the individual award as he ran out of steam over the extra distance and was passed by his Kilbarchan clubmate, Billy Adams. The emerging Clydebank took the team title ahead of Kilbarchan and Victoria Park.
